PLEDGE TO SCOOP THE POOP

Summary

When pet waste gets washed into local waterways, the decaying waste uses up oxygen and releases toxic chemicals that can kill fish and encourage invasive weed and algae growth. Viruses, bacteria, and excess nutrients in pet waste can harm aquatic plants and wildlife.

There is no poop fairy, so always pick up after your pets—even in your own yard! Carry biodegradable bags wherever you go out for a walk so you can dispose of waste properly.

Pledge to Scoop the Poop

WVCWA requests that you take the Pet Waste Pledge—a pledge to always pick up your pet’s waste and dispose of it properly. The first 50 people to take the pledge will receive free, biodegradable pet waste bags and a leash dispenser!
